

When was the last time you gave your communications the consideration it deserves?

Can you and your staff work from home at a moment's notice with complete access and control of your business communications

IP telephony allows the flexibility that companies require in today's business market place, with home working solutions that keep users fully connected to their communications platform.

Can you imagine having your office extended to the place of your choice

Do you still have to pick up the phone to make a call

Computer telephony integration can now be part of your every day experience allowing outbound dialling from your PC and inbound screen popping of the database of choice.

Find the number you want to dial in your contacts, highlight it and simply click one button to dial

For a no obligation consultation or demonstration of the latest communications platform call the Maximum Group

Telephone 0800 1105 900

That's why your organisation should choose Maximum Group.

improving performance reducing costs

When was the last time you gave your communications the consideration it deserves?

Are you tied to the desk from that tangle of a mess caused by that dreaded handset cord

Free yourself with various mobile communications solutions from headsets to mobile phones.

Wherever you are, feel free to take that call

Did you miss that call? At the end of the working day do you still close the business and ignore your customers

However simple or complex your needs, gain the ability to offer options to your customers at the times to suit you. Whether you use presence management, auto attendant or basic voicemail, give yourself the chance to return that call.

Get your telephone to notify you of who called in your absence whether they leave a message or not. Use your system to log information on calls made and received

For a no obligation consultation or demonstration of the latest communications platform call the Maximum Group

Telephone 0800 1105 900

That's why your organisation should choose Maximum Group.

